Institute of Training Professionals

cordially invites you to a Forum on

Successful Mentoring at Work (導亦有道)

Today people talk about Mentoring and admire how it makes positive impacts on corporate people performance and the professional life of those involved. Mentoring programs have been increasingly applied in established organizations, universities and various professional circles to develop talents – with an aim to pass on, via deliberate process and structure, the core values, mindsets, experiences and know-hows. Successful Mentoring requires a great deal of dedication, efforts and skills to achieve the desired outcomes. It is easier said than done as many schemes have simply fallen apart.

To address such concerns, ITP (Institute of Training Professionals) is pleased to invite seasoned practitioners to share with you, at the forthcoming half-day Forum, their valuable real life experiences and insights, including the pitfalls as well as success stories.
